

MICHELE BUGLIESI

Michele Bugliesi holds a degree in Computer Science from the University of Pisa, a Master's Degree in Computer Science from Purdue University (USA) and a PhD in Information Technology from the University of Paris VII Didier Diderot (France).

Current Dean and Chairman of the Board of Directors of the Ca' Foscari University in Venice, he is an internationally recognised computer scientist, as well as a manager and passionate advocate of digital transformation.

He began his academic career in 1991 as a Researcher at Ca' Foscari, then became Associate Professor in 2000 and Full Professor of Computer Science in 2006, before being appointed Dean in 2014.

The recipient of numerous awards and academic accolades, Bugliesi has been a board member in public and private entities in recent years, including Ciset, VEGA, SmaCT, Fondazione CINI, Fondazione di Venezia and Fondazione Università Ca' Foscari in Venice, of which he is still the President.

February 2020