

BENEDETTO LEVI

Benedetto Levi holds a degree in Logistics and Production Engineering from the Polytechnic of Turin and a master's degree in Management from the Paris School of Commerce.

After some experiences in Turin and London, he moved to Paris, where he gained important experience as a successful entrepreneur and manager: in 2013 he founded ExtraVerso, a startup specialized in the sale of smartphone accessories, and in 2015 he held the position of Country Manager Italy and Deputy General Manager International of Captain Train, later acquired by the English group Trainline, European leader in the online sale of train tickets.

In 2018, at only 29 years of age, he was in charge of managing the landing in Italy of the telecommunications operator Iliad, taking over as CEO and quickly making it the fourth largest mobile operator in Italy.
